To walk into a space and feel a sense of calm is a blessing of good design, and it takes a special skill to successfully pair an old world home with a character filled authentic addition, and these owners have this skill in spades.

Their newly renovated home has been transformed into a spacious 4 bedroom, 2 living areas and an established salon that could be easily converted into a home office with its own external access.

The rooms themselves are intimate yet graciously proportioned with high ceilings and large windows that flood the house with natural light.

The effect is calm, bright and warm all at the same time.

As you walk down the arched passageway into the living room and open plan kitchen you are immediately welcomed by the gilt mirror hanging over the wood fire.
